...STUDENTS HELPING TUMWATER DEVELOP PARK PLAN...The City of Tumwater has never had a comprehensive park and recreation plan. Now, thanks to the combined efforts of the city and two Evergreen students, such a plan is fast becoming a reality. The students--- Jan Rensel, a St. Placid High School graduate, and Peter May, a New Yorker --- are spending the summer helping draft a comprehensive park plan which will become the focus of a projected six-year recreational capital improvement program. Tumwater City Planner-Administrator Paul DeBonney said the Evergreen duo is working full time in conjunction with city staff and the Park Board gathering data, updating maps and identifying the city's needs for parks and recreation.

...STAFF ARCHITECT, TWO NEW FACULTY JOIN EVERGREEN TEAM...Roger J. Stewart of Tacoma joined the Evergreen team as a staff architect this week, and Provost Ed Kormondy announced the appointment of two new faculty members --- Margaret Gribskov, a journalist, and Henry "Hap" Freund, an attorney.
