

Evening and Weekend Studies Liberal Arts Forum
Fall, 2005

The “Luxury” of a Liberal Education

Suggested Reading: “A Liberal Education is Not a Luxury,” by Marshall Gregory, The Chronicle of Higher Education. Washington: 9/12/03. Vol.50, Iss. 3; pg. B.16 available next to mailboxes and through the Evergreen Library Catalog online.

Schedule

Wednesday, October 19 6-9:00 p.m. Meet in the Longhouse

“Changes and Challenges – How College Changes Students – and their relationships with partners, families, friends and co-workers.” – Elizabeth McHugh and Jason Kilmer, Evergreen Counseling Center

We encourage you to bring the significant people in your life to this and other workshops!

“Libraries – and Evergreen’s Library – in a time of chaos” – Sarah Ryan

“So you want to take an art class . . . ” Amy Fisher, Drawing Studio, Arts Annex

“Speaking Your Mind and Shaping Your Transcript: The Role of the Student Self Evaluation” – Susan Preciso and Stephen Beck

“Writing a Seminar Paper or Reading Response” – Char Simons

“You and ‘Doing Science’ as part of a liberal arts education” – Karen Hogan

Saturday, October 22 9 a.m. – 12 noon

Take Back Your Time Day – Olympia Center (Olympia Ave. and Columbia St. downtown: meets from 11-3) A program on time poverty, overwork, and alternatives

“You and ‘Doing Science’ as part of a liberal arts education” Including a lab tour – Peter Pessiki and Karen Hogan Meet in CAB 110.

“Libraries – and Evergreen’s Library – in a time of chaos” – Sarah Ryan – Meet in CAB 110

“So you want to take an art class . . . ” Amy Fisher, Drawing Studio, Arts Annex

Discussion: “Changes and Challenges – How College Changes Students – and their relationships with partners, families, friends and co-workers.” – CAB 110

Polishing your work – a workshop on editing – Esmé Ryan – CAB 110