Proposal to the Evergreen Community

In view of the response that has been received from the community on publication of the first three issues of "The Paper", it should be recognized that the community is cognizant of the need for this form of communication. This publication would include local and community events, but also would cover world and national struggles, conflicts and events. However, due to the lack of funds, it is impossible to continue to fulfill this need.

It is recognized that there are interested people who have had previous experience in all major aspects of newspaper work and it is planned to exploit this knowledge and apply it in educational workshops for interested community members, with the intent of becoming members of the Co-operative.

After numerous organizational and philosophical sessions the following procedure for operation has been temporarily adopted.

The proposal is:

1. The newspaper will be published weekly, will be tabloid size (7 3/8 x 14 5/8" per page copy), and will be a bare of eight pages.
2. The staff organization will depart from traditional set positions such as editor, manager, etc., and will be a co-operative.
3. The organization of which will allow each member of the co-operative to experience all facets of newspaper work.
4. Working members should consist of students, faculty and administration interested in working on the paper.
5. Working members will be required to attend weekly issue planning sessions and will be trained through practice in publishing functions.
6. Temporary individual functions within the co-operative will be decided upon by the co-operative.
7. A working editorial board will be established consisting of working members of the co-operative present at the weekly planning session and/or representatives appointed by them. (See no. 3 & 4.) The editorial board reserves the sole right to decide what will be published, and will not submit to any form of external censorship. Shall adhere to state laws regarding libel and invasion of privacy.
8. The co-operative hopes to receive continuous evaluation of the newspaper by the TESC Community. The form of which is left to be decided later.
9. Any organizational or philosophical changes of the newspaper will be decided by working members of the co-operative.

We recognize that the goal of this publication will be to improve communication within the Evergreen Community by providing a forum for the free expression of ideas and to aid in social change through (but not limited to) advocate presentations.

All money received from Student and Activity fees will be deposited in "The Paper Co-operative" account and withdrawn on a per-issue cost basis. Withdrawals must have the approval of all account co-signers.

Wednesday: Costigan

Dr. Giovanni Costigan, University of Washington professor and World Champion Debater, will speak of involvement to interested parties at Evergreen, Wednesday, Jan. 26. Dr. Costigan, whose field is Asian Studies, recently renewed his debating fame from a triumphant confrontation with William F. Buckley, Jr., before some 8,000 people at the University of Washington.

Prof. Costigan intends to discuss the pressing need for student involvement in the political arena from presidential politics to city councilman.

Accompanying Costigan will be Rick Ring, State Student Coordinator for the McGovern for President Campaign, with which Dr. Costigan is also affiliated.

Following his speech, which will be at 7 p.m., in Lecture Hall One, Costigan and Ring will meet with members of the TESC McGovern Club to discuss campaign strategy. The speech, of course, free and open to the public.

Film festival: Thursday

By FRANKIE FOSTER

Perhaps when you see the words "student film", you think of the awful films your high school English teacher gave you in your senior year; or maybe you've never made a film or seen a good student film. And maybe watching a movie gives you a headache, and maybe you'd much rather see "Reader's Digest" and watch "T.V. this Thursday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. But, if you did you'd miss more than 20 films at Evergreen's very first Student Film Festival. These include a documentary film on last year's May Day demonstrations in Washington, D.C., a documentary on the Satoko River Rock Festival, three animated films each by a different filmmaker plus an incredible collection of comedy and dramatic type films. All of the feature films for the Jan. 27 extravaganza were created by Evergreen film-makers.

It's hoped that the Festival, set for Lecture Hall I, will serve as a organizing influence for film-making in general. There will be sign-up lists for an animated film crew and future movie acting roles.

VOLUME I, NUMBER 4
THE EVERGREEN STATE COLLEGE, Olympia, Washington 98505
January 24, 1972
In case any of the Evergreen Community really wonders why no newspaper was published last week, there are two very short and not-so-sweet answers. First of all, no one else in the cooperative did not have enough money, and secondly the cooperative does not have enough people to handle the paper and put out a paper all at the same week and still keep up in their programs.

"The Paper" is still alive, however, for the time being at least. There are between six and eight people putting out the paper. We have no administrators and no faculty members on our staff, even after the many and recurring requests that we have published in "The Paper". Students at least responded—we had a few people come in and offer to write articles, feature stories, etc., but we still need much more people. Does the Evergreen Community really want a newspaper? Do you want "The Paper"? If you truly don't want one, at least tell us so; then we can stop playing this game of "giving the people what they really don't want" and get busy on something worthwhile while you are still here. At present, all we have got from this community is an underwheleming amount of Apathy.

Many of the articles in this paper are not at all what we would like them to be. They are shallow and journalistically weak, but this is all we are able to do until we get some of you people to help us.

As it is now we are trying to get advertisers, composing advertisements (lists), writing stories, laying out the paper, correcting proofs and stagnant the copies. If you want to "set forth to Shelton and Lacey to get it printed," it has not enough time in one week to do all of this, not with the size of the staff that we have. It is obvious to us now that people expect a weekly paper; and unless there is a weekly paper that news of Evergreen can not be covered adequately.

If you have any little talent, even if it is just that you can cheer us up a distraught staff, please, please, come in and see us—we need you.

We are located in the library in room 3226, phone 753-3868 or campus extension 3819. Someone should be in the office from 3 to 5 p.m. each week day.

Again, due to the lack of staff, if no one is in, leave a note, or call 753-3868. It might be a good idea to ask for Cam, Bruce or Joe.

Deadlines for "The Paper" are set and articles should be dropped in Room L326 in plenty of time for the week's issue. Feature articles should be in by Wednesday noon, and news articles by noon Thursday.

If you just have the information and don't want to write the article, please come in or call, at least one day before the deadline and talk to someone in the office, hopefully between 3 and 5 p.m.

We at least hope that we can keep communications open.

Legislative forum meets

Redistricting and women's rights legislation will be the topics of this week's Legislative Forum beginning with coffee at 9 a.m. tomorrow, January 25, in the council chambers of the Olympia Civic Hall.

Lois North, a second-term King County legislator, will provide an informative background on redistricting beginning at 9:30 a.m. She will also give a legislator's view on the importance of redistricting and what will happen if the legislature is unable to meet the court-imposed deadline for establishing the new boundaries.

Student fees board meets today at 4

An entire quarter has passed and student organizations have had to operate without money. Many people hoped that the student Services and Activities fees board, which met last week, would finally be ready to allocate funds from the $37,000 made available by the Board of Trustees.

However, the fees board had not yet prepared an effective program list. At present, the legislation and deciding on funding proposals. The two-and-a-half hour meeting ended chaotically with no one sure about receiving money.

Students were required at the meeting that the $37,000 is not student money, but is controlled by the trustees, and any decision made by the student board is subject to final veto by Larry Stenberg, dean of Developmental Services.

The fees board heard supportive statements on the first ten proposals submitted, but would not make any decision until they had refined the allocation procedures.

Some groups that have asked for significant portions of the $37,000 funds are:

- Indian Center $2,000
- Organic farm $1,500
- FM radio $4,500
- Faith Center $7,000
- Theater People $5,800
- Yacht Club $3,700
- Entertainment $4,100
- MECHA $6,000
- Black Student Union $7,200
- "The Paper" $9,500

All figures are rounded to the nearest hundred.

If only these 10 groups are granted their full requests, the student fees board would need nearly $5,500. Obviously the board has its work cut out to trim the budget proposals to fit the $37,000 available.

An interim decision to grant each group $500 to meet immediate needs may be instituted until final request problems can be solved.

There also may be legal hurdles confronting the board with constitutionality of using state money to finance religious groups for such things as a bail bond fund.

The student board will continue its hearing today at 4 p.m. in 3212.
Tax reform rally

A college-based effort to push statewide tax reform will end its preliminary "mushrooming out of control" with a rally tomorrow morning in front of the Capitol Building. According to Arlene Hendler of Seattle Pacific College, those planning to attend lack anusive turnout by members of the Evergreen community, especially its 1300 private student body.

Ms. Hendler, an SPC senior, has seen the student movement grow from the frustrated attempts of too few fellow collegiate planners. To her the Jan. 24 in-person gathering, as the day before, 9 a.m., will culminate the first phase of telephone calls to legislators as well as letters and petitions seeking better tax break for education.

Then, she reports, student supporters of equitable taxation plans to lobby, and then some, for the remainder of the Special Session and work up to a vote of the people in November. They have good reason, she recants, since school levies failed last year and the state's three largest-Spokane, Everett and Tacoma-are expected to go down in 1972.

Although the TESC community first heard of the grassroots tax reform movement last week, Arlene hopes the campus' proximity to the rally site will couple with widespread support for tax reform for a "magnificent" representation of students, faculty and administration.

Tuesday morning plans include a 40-piece band from SPC and University of Washington to complement the presentation by students of petitions supporting immediate tax reform by constitutional amendment.

Their own rendition of "When the Saints Go Marching In" scheduled as legislators file into work, should set the rally's tempo.

"Washington's legislators are attempting to dodge this issue because of the election year," Arlene notes.

The trek to Olympia makes good sense because, "direction the observers: Everyone is now made of the new youth vote, and our participation in this work within the lawmaking system shows commendable responsibility on our part-how can we lose?"

Petitions to be presented to leaders of the Senate and House of Representatives have already been "boosting" back to leaders of the movement. In the past few months, they have been circulated throughout the state, primarily through 800 representatives reached by the Washington Public School Music Educators Association.

Since musical programs are first to suffer when levies fail, the group has long sought the "fair and equitable" tax reform package mentioned in the petitions.

Included in the form's wording is a pledge "to support the necessary constitutional amendment in November, 1972" for a decision on the matter by the state's voters, including those newly enfranchised teenagers and twenty year-olds.

Evergreen and other local participants should arrive in the rally area by 9:30 a.m. tomorrow, ideally with signs and placards, promoting immediate tax reform. Seattle and Tacoma-area students, as well as representatives of Jaycees, churches and businesses, plan to arrive that time in car pools.

Once the political/containment is completed, members of the visiting task force may visit the TESC campus to view the new state educational addition and discuss future systematic procedure.
VIEWPOINT

State-of-the-Nixon

President Nixon was plugged to last Thursday to deliver the state-of-the-Union address. In his ambiguous speech he emphasized his "advance" in foreign policy and blamed Congress for stalling his "most important social legislation in a decade."

However, Nixon ignored the problems of minorities, women, unemployment, poverty, the environment, health and child care, and the plight of the American farms and cities, among others. He received severe chastisement in a Democratic party reply on Friday.

More defense

An important item in Nixon's 1972 budget is an increase in defense spending "because of a need to proceed with new weapons systems." For a generation of peace. Amid the controversy of extreme wastefulness of the military on weapons procurement, Nixon is now asking Congress to increase funds for the military-industrial complex lost over the past three years.

More chemical research

There's a fascinating item in the new defense budget, about $130 million for chemical and biological warfare research and weapons procurement. This is only a bit less than the military had in 1969 before President Nixon renounced the use of biological weapons, even in retaliation, it was his "initiative toward peace."

The Army gets $50.8 million of it for weapons procurement, twice as much as last year. More than half of that will pay for "smoke munitions." White phosgene is superior to antipersonnel bombs which explode into flames.

Biological research has dropped 28 percent since Nixon's pledge, to $13.2 million. Funds for chemical warfare are raised to $26 million in fiscal 1972, to finance a search for new lethal and incapacitating chemical agents, dispersion techniques and defenses.

Sickle cell and the pill

 وبالتالي, النقص في العلاجات المتوفرة للسكيل كهف الأ-equines في إنجلترا، والتي تتأثر بالعديد من الصعاب العريضة، يوجد حالياً فرصة للبحث في الأمراض المزمنة والجمعت.”

More chemical bombs

The big push in chemical weapons development is behind the XM 687 155mm binary weapons system, in which two or more toxic agents are combined en route to the target, to become a lethal compound. The military can adapt this chemical bomb to current delivery systems, like field howitzers, which makes it a money-saver.

The Army plans to replace existing chemical stockpiles with the binary weapons system, at a cost of about $1 billion. Increased research and development of weapons, particularly chemical weapons, comes at a time when the use of antipersonnel bombs and chemical agents being under fire on Indochina has reached a level as high as under the Johnson administration.

Saturation and antipersonnel bombings, including the new seven-round half-shell V-1 vault bomb, can effectively destroy everything within a mile radius, and maim and injure anyone within three miles. More than 1,500 tons of bombs are dropped on Indochina daily.

The U.S. has replaced orders for its ground troops operations with an elaborate "electronic battlefield" composed of vastly superior air power, a network of expensive sensors to detect "enemy" movements, and a sophisticated computer system. Involvement in Indochina has changed from a war by ESS computer against the people of Indochina.

Notes from Greenie

These notes come from Greenie, who is really a very strange bird. A member of the group, "The Greenies," Grubegrahambers," looks at institutions with his head cocked to one side and a loose gun upon his back.

Today Greenie wonders if you are happy both with the dog in the living unit decision and with the way it was made? Democracy, right? 900 yes, 6 no. So the decision is, "No." Right? That's fair right? Yeah, that's democracy all right. All power to the people. The right people, that is.

Well, anyway, Greenie suggests that if you are happy with that decision, write a little note about what you like about it and send it to Gerald Burke with a note suggesting that it go in his portfolio. And also include a carbon copy for Charles McCann to read. (You know, and his carbon should be sent to the President's Office.) And if you don't agree with the decision? Well, read the preceding paragraph and figure out for yourself what you ought to do. That's the Evergreen way....

Sex Center

Right now, a limited amount of information is available on campus concerning sexually related topics, like medical problems involving contraception.

It may be worthwhile to start a sex center to provide both men and women with information of birth control methods, perhaps as a counseling service for sexual problems, to aid in liberation struggles of women, gay and straight, to improve communications in the community of these struggles, or any number of sex related problems and interests.

Ideally this sex center would work in conjunction with the woman's group on campus and share resources. Also any funding might come from S and A fees.

 Ninety-eight percent of the people who have this disease of the red blood cells are black. People with the disease suffer elongation of the red blood cells, which starve the blood of oxygen and cause blood clots. They rarely live beyond the age of 30.

The U.S. government has given very little money to research and development of a cure, even though 10 percent of the blacks in this country now suffer from the disease and at least 30 percent carry the trait—a form of U.S. genocide.

The Ramparts quotes several doctors from medical journals who "felt that oral contraceptives acted as agents precipitating red blood cell sticking, which in turn produce blood clotting."

The organic farm needs your compost. Put vegetable matter into the dumpsters located at the dorms and mobs. They could also use some tools. If you are interested, the farm people have drawn up a list for organic farming and are asking for help from people who have backgrounds in animal husbandry. The farm on Lewis Road is open daily to 4 p.m.
As long as talk of The Evergreen State College has captured the imagination of student and staff alike, so too have discussions of its date of death. With regret, many are now giving it an inevitable life span of three or four years, before it becomes "another state college."

It seems that, while the concept of Evergreen is ready for the educational world, those within higher education have not prepared themselves for Evergreen's heady challenge. By the time attitudes are realigned to accommodate the opportunity and responsibility -- of TESC, the dream will have eased into an apathetic demise.

Three or four years of attempts by faculty members to relate, to present meaningful approaches to higher education will seemingly have been dissipated. The opportunity and responsibility presented to an initial 1,100 "pioneers" and subsequent students will seemingly have been wasted.

Why?

Discounting inevitability, a major factor in the fall of Evergreen's grand design may well prove to be community members' inability or unwillingness to convert from concepts imposed by previous educational environments, in essence to give the infant dream a fighting chance. Prejudgment of The Evergreen State College will eventually make it so.

On a much smaller scale, TESC's mere striping "The Paper" has already experienced such a sentiment to try a free form of communication.

The only reason a first edition appeared last year, some have complained, is that a few frustrated and beleagured community members chose "railroad" it to completion. Wherein just might be the answer.

Now that tangible evidence exists of the benefits of a community-wide communications medium in the form of these first four editions, those beleagured activists see a foundation settling into place, complete with a somewhat harry direction. It's going to be easier now to rally the community to assist with this widespread form of information dispersal; they believe, now that a rough idea of this communication form exists.

The newspaper's situation seemingly can be related to Evergreen's short life span, should one choose to believe that too great a wealth of discussions, memorandums, plans and procedures have effectively stilled the possibility of overcoming previous educational syndromes. Perhaps a few more beleagured individuals, effectively placed, would be in order.

At this point, since a Student Fee Hearing Board is still in process and The Evergreen State College, Inc. would rather not consider just yet branching into the newspaper publishing business, these first four issues are being brought to TESC through the courtesy of advertisers.

Like Peterson's Foodtown in Westside Center, they all are graphically proving that "we think you're great!" by picking up the tab right now for the sorely needed communicative medium. Like Westside Speed Wash, who will see a good many Evergreen laundry loads pass before realizing a profit on their public service advertisement, all of them want to be a part of this beginning effort. Now that it has begun, "The Paper" staff looks for that initial acceptance, by patronage of these pioneer advertisers or more mention that their involvement is appreciated, by redirection from passive consideration to active involvement, by offers of assistance -- in whatever form -- from those able and willing to assist. The Paper is anything but the egotistical brainchild of a group or two individuals. A healthy number of Olympia community businesses have already proven that point. It can also be proved, unfortunately quite absolutely, by community rejection of the infant newspaper.

Coffee House?

To all concerned:

There should be a coffee house on campus or off for the benefit of TESC students, Olympia High School Students and people of the Olympia area. A place for music, poetry, theater, films, camaraderie, relaxation, good vibe, plus a cup of coffee, tea, or hot cider would be really fine. This must be possible somehow with people joining together and a project benefiting for all.

I've been helping trying to get something going. Through lists over 150 have signed that they want a coffee house. People seem willing to help operate, design, coordinate music contracts, and get together a coffee house. Over fifty talented people agreed that they were willing to play music, jam, read their original poems, and do drama. Guitarists, piano players, singers, harmonica players, trombonists, and a strip house are all ready and waiting to perform. What's missing? A place. The library is no good. One contractor controls all food services. The concrete wall we call a library doesn't really provide an atmosphere for a coffee house anyway. I would again ask the organic leaders who occupy a TESC building on Lewis Road or the Day Care people on Driftwood Road why not a coffee house?

Somebody out there must have the initiative. Otherwise things will continue without a coffee house. It's that simple.

Notes on Cooper Point

"Nearly approved a reasoning ordinance to allow the use of residential development of the Cooper Point" - The TESC.

It is unclear what the "unorganized confrontation with the county commissioners" in the opening paragraph refers to, but the Cooper Point Association is attempting to negotiate a relationship with the local county officials, not an air of confrontation. The Association believes that the commissioners and other officials, although pressed from many angles, are sincerely attempting to try to balance the wishes of residents into useful governmental guidelines. The best attitude we can assume is that of patient officials, willing to listen, rather than taking a negative, reactionary role which benefits no one.

MECHA says NO!

To: "The Paper"

No one asked MECHA if they thought "The Paper" should be continued or not, but MECHA usually doesn't want to be asked before it expresses itself.

Should "The Paper" die just because it says it is, regardless of opinion to the views it presents-views which come from us, the students? No, and "The Paper" was appropriated some "used money" and then said that its short life was coming to an end.

Maybe "The Paper" isn't everyone's cup of tea. Everyone's not capable of transmitting and acquiring news; but, let's face it, it's the only one we have at this time. If you as a student can sit back and watch all letters to The Paper Co-operative are welcome. Such contributions will be printed as space allows.

In order for letters and guest editorials to be printed, each must be typed and as well as the address and local phone number of the author. Unsigned letters or those submitted with pseudonyms will not be printed, although names will be withheld on request.

Ordinary correspondence must be typed and limited to 350 words or less. The Paper Co-operative reserves the right to edit for matters of libel.

Contributions may be submitted to the newspaper office in Library Room 3216.
During this special session of the legislature many bills and measures are introduced that may be of special interest to members of "the Evergreen Community."

Because of our nearness to the "seat of power", we have the opportunity and the obligation to make our voices heard.

There is a special toll free number available to state residents to call. You may find out the current status of all bills, committee meetings time and places, and may have your message relayed to any member of the legislature you wish.

The number is 1-800-660-6000.

You may wish to speak out for or against the following bills:

HB204, King, D-Everett, Provides that state sales on the age of majority will not be denied public assistance to persons between 18 and 21.

HB-33 - Shera, R-Tacoma, Provides a new dual automatic system, excluding drunk drivers, stolen cars, and other exclusions.

SJIR106 and HR616, Bailey, D South Bend and North, R-Seattle, Amends Constitution to provide equal rights regardless of sex and marital status.

HC6, and SCR3, King, R-Vancouver and Metcalf, R-Mukilteo, Supports that schools use education, police power, and other programs to eliminate drug abuse in schools.

SB79, Atwood, D-Seattle, Provides that irreconcilable differences between spouses are grounds for divorce, without regard to fault.

SB10, Doy, D-Spokane, Allows schools to use their facilities for fording elderly persons.

SB91, Holman, R-Bainbridge Island, Permits minors to obtain contraceptive devices without parental signatures under certain circumstances.

HB131, Charrete, D-Abbecond, Limits legislators to terms totaling twelve years.

HB127, Conner, D-Sequim, Establishes a state lottery with programs calling for the education fund.

HB75 - Marano, D-Tacoma, Allows the Department of Motor Vehicles to furnish insurance companies with information on certain types of driving violations as well as accidents.

HB176, Lyns, D-Shelton, Prevents state residents from being required to serve in undeclared war outside of the United States.

HB77, Hubbard, Requires the state to pay costs of appeals to higher courts for persons unable to pay.

HB170, Lyn, D-Shelton and Stuck, D-Seattle, Includes students between 8 and 21 years old in the definition of child for public assistance purposes.

HB84, Julian, D-Seattle, Extends sales and use tax to motor vehicle fuel.

All able-bodied persons are being encouraged to sign petitions against the proposed tax. The school districts are being urged to hold a rally on the Capitol steps.

The next few days will be critical to the outcome of this very important issue. It is vital that everyone do his part to ensure that this tax is defeated. Petitions can be obtained at any of the local school districts or by writing to the Washington Education Association in Olympia.

The item of salaries mentioned in the budget proposed by "The Paper" Cooperative is not "normal" salary system. The total amount requested, $98 weekly, will be used for payment of co-operative members on a non-wage salary system.

The SRS each week is broken down into 60 units, representing hours, of $1.80 each.

The co-op members are those who have worked in the publication areas of the paper turn in their total number of hours per week in each of the publication fields. Each of these totals is then checked with the field's required hours value (example: 5 hours typesetting/proofreading 5 hours copywriting/reading 5 hours typing = 2.5 hours).

Total hours for each member is then totalled, resulting in the total hours to be paid for that week. This number of hours is then considered larger than 60, therefore, a ratio is set up between the total number of hours to be paid and 60. This ratio is then multiplied with the total number of hours for each person, yielding the number of units each member of the co-operative worked.

The number of units for each member is then multiplied by the value of one unit ($3.00), which then gives the portion of the $98 to which each member is entitled.

Don’t worry about our poor bookkeeper going crazy with all this—we have computer programs to handle the task.

In the 1960's, persistent but long ignored social problems came to the public eye. Poverty, racism, malnutrition, environmental destruction, pollution, consumer fraud surfaced. The emergence of these problems created unparalleled awareness and concern among the general public. A new determination to fight the wrongs developed. But as the search for solutions was pursued, we encountered new obstacles: the public and private institutions entrusted with power and responsibility for solving these newly recognized problems seemed mired in incompentency and inefficiency. We learned that nutritious foods and safe effective drugs were not guarantied. The pop culture of the Food & Drug Administration. We learned that the War on Poverty was submerged in bureaucratic inefficiencies and the endless red tape of governmental policies.

In the late 60's and early 70's, these realizations gave rise to a new kind of organization: the citizen public interest group. The move to give voice and power to the public interest sprang from the belief that long-range interests of the average citizen will continue to be neglected by decision-makers until private economic decisions which have important effects on the public welfare are thoroughly studied and discussed; government policies take into consideration the views and needs of more groups in society; and new methods are developed to insure consideration of the public interest in private economic decisions and government policy.

Students were far from immune to the problems and challenges of the 60's. They came to the colleges and universities equipped with a high level of social awareness, eager to learn how to deal competently with the forces of social injustice. Their expectations were met with disappointment. Students quickly discovered that the educational process did not encourage or train them to grapple with real problems affecting real people, or provide direction for seeking positive social change. As a result, many students found themselves leading a schizophrenic existence: their responsibilities as students conflicted totally with their responsibilities as concerned citizens. The student movement remained tied to the cycles of academic life. Activities occurred when exams and vacations did not. Staying power, a crucial factor in any attempt at social problem-solving, was sadly lacking.

The 60's produced an abundance of student energy and idealism without a viable methodology. Because the structure, tools and continuity needed to identify and address manageable problems were not available, this energy flowed into massive, civil-disobedient social protest and the inhumanity of Vietnam, the violence of racism, the destruction of our life support systems. Although demonstrations and sit-ins did focus attention on irresponsible activities conducted in the public's name but at its expense, that focus of action did not achieve the goal of eliminating the problems.

The problems of the 70's will be different from those of the 60's but no less pressing. Racism, no longer announced by a "whites only" sign, lies buried in such things as institutionalized hiring and promotional practices. To smooth, verify and deal with these less tangible problems required a new kind of inter-disciplinary cooperation, expertise and commitment. The methods of social change used in the past will not answer the needs of today or of the future. We must evolve new techniques, new tools, new strategies. We are just beginning to find many of these at Evergreen. Unfortunately, most of them deal only with the individuals themselves and do not incorporate any large numbers of people necessary for social change. Student public interest research groups are one possibility for ways for us to form ourselves into an effective group for social change.

The Washington Public Interest Research Group will be a cooperative statewide effort of college and university students from public and private institutions to develop new methods and tools to deal with problems of consumer fraud (from auto repair practices to food pricing and daily practices), environmental protection (from resource planning to inner city decay), and corporate and governmental responsibility as related to the consumer and the environment.

Recognizing that put student efforts to effect positive social change have suffered from diffusion and lack of direction, the Washington Public Interest Research Group will provide a focus for students to join in concerted action on problems which concern Evergreen's next group meeting will be at 9 a.m. Friday, Jan. 29, in room 339.

Members of the Evergreen community who are hang-up on books (and aren’t we all?), rejoice! The Library is now 50 per cent open and openly welcomes shelf browsers in need of printed pages to fill their bibliographic appetites.

Half of the shelves on the third floor of the Library building, where the Library is conveniently located, opened late last week to book browsers and other environmental nuisances.

The place is still under a little bit of that gray cloud called inventory, so the remaining half of the third floor is still "off limits," for a short time at least.

Do not lose heart, however, the Library does have a system in place to retrieve the books from the now "off limits" shelves upstairs. The only problem with this system is that you have to find the call number of the book you want. The means to the information is the micro-film readers. If you haven’t used a film reader yet, go to the library and try using one. They are a charm!!

If you are gifted with speed vision or steel eyeballs the micro-film readers will present no problems to you. If you are like the rest of us, it might take a little perseverance to get your book.

Don’t lose heart, though, surely that book is worth it. Who knows, you may find these rigorous, valuable training in your profession if it happens to be reading numbers off a train travelling at 100 miles per hour. If you are still bound and determined to get a book or just want to look around and talk to someone, the library hours are set up very good for you last night people: Monday - Thursday, 8 a.m. to Midnight; Friday 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday 1 p.m. to Midnight.

Media Loan in Evergreen’s Library may well prove to be TESC community’s undoing. But, as one sage put it, "what a beautiful way to go!"

Card-carrying Evergreeners can obtain a wealth of audio-visual, cinema and photographic equipment, from super-8 and 16mm cameras and projectors to battery-operated video tape cameras and recording tape. The Library, acting for the college, purchased equipment for all and new loans are based on this variety of material as a resource service.

Every member of the Evergreen community has equal access to the vast array of records, projectors, editors, cameras and accessories, states the Library’s Position Paper No. 8. Conditions are that the equipment must be used only for "learning situations" or "credit-related purposes." If necessary, a competitive rental program in the future may allow college-related groups to "use loan equipment in a money generating activities," the position paper continues.

At this extremely high extended loan periods can be arranged in advance for field trips and research, the usual guaranteed use period is 24 hours from the time that Media Loan director Yves Duvergils and his assistant sign an Evergreener sign his or her life away. "Which brings to mind of this article to the potentially bad news-responsibility for the borrowed equipment. Although an optional damage insurance policy exists with fully high premiums and bare deductible amounts, the borrower is obligated to replace lost or stolen equipment.

As several members of the Evergreen community will attest, the Library intends to collect such debts rapidly, since no other funds for replacement equipment exist.
Fun city?

If you are a stranger to our fair community, no doubt you have experienced some difficulties in finding appropriate and pleasant place to relax—"downtown." This is intended to help you in selecting the right place, if you venture "downtown" for whatever turns you on.

Bus rides are free, for the rest of January, so your transportation problems are over (for one more week, anyway) as soon as you get downtown or to the West Side. Bus schedules are available from the drivers or at the Evergreen Library Information Center.

To make certain that you have a minimum of future transportation problems, stop by the Info Center, second floor Library Lobby, to sign the bus petition for service from town to the campus. The new Olympia bus commissioner wants to reconsider the possibility of a route to Evergreen, and intends to bring the matter before the February commission meeting. He needs your input.

EATING

All of our Drive In's offer the same fare, cheap and poor, with few exceptions. You have probably become familiar with "Bob's Big Burgers," on Harrison. The food is of poorer quality than most, but he is making an effort to obtain the students business and even offers on campus delivery for a small fee of 25 cents. If the food quality improves, then by all means avail yourself of the service and help support one of the newer Drive In's in the Olympia Area.

The "A & W" on 6th and Legion Way has good Drive In food for the price. Check it out.

There are two "Rib-Eye" restaurants in the Olympia Area. One on the East Side at the end of Fourth Ave, and one in Tenwater. Their main advantage is that they are open 24 hours. The food is of moderate price and moderate quality. There is a 50 cent bottle charge, so if you just want to drink coffee and talk, forget it.

The "Diner" on Black Lake Blvd, offers good food, good service and a moderate price. Their shakes are 35 cents but are of good size and will fill you up. One order of fries is big enough for two. Try one. They close at 8 p.m. on weekends.

Unless you are amply endowed with an unlimited supply of funds, avoid such places as "The Governor House," "Jaccaranda," "Tyre," the "Evergreen Inn," "Golden Carriage," and the "Falls Terrace." If you are celebrating with a large group and you must pluge, then I recommend "The Golden Carriage" for good food, and "The Governor House" for atmosphere. Both of these are rather expensive, and not very good value. You can get a better price, and better food at the "Governor House," unless you are appropriately dressed your seat will be at the rear behind the potel plants.

DRINKING AND DANCING

It is hard to separate the two, but I will try. There are probably only three taverns worthy of mention. "Ali Baba's" on Fourth Ave, is the newest tavern in town. It offers Pool, Drinking, and Dancing, in all separate areas. They have live music only on Sunday nights. "Four Company" is playing each night. They jack their prices up to 50 cents a schooner and 2.00 a pitcher when the music starts, so try and be there before 7:30 P.M. L.D. is required and is usually checked at the door.

"The 107Tavern" on Capitol Way has a different atmosphere for this town. It sams its appeal to "Long Hairs" and the "Hippie" type. There is no band and no dancing but there is FM music at all times. It has taken much harassment from the local P.D. and because of this, they check I.D. carefully.

The "Melody Lane" in Lacey has only been here going for it, "The Mud Bay Blues," probably the best "Boogie" band in the area. They play at 9 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights, and the price of booze is jacked up when they start playing. I.D. is not checked as close but is still checked. A few other taverns in passing, "B.J.'s," on Tuesday nights, "Ally's" out in Nisqually has cheap prices and doesn't check I.D. as close as others. The G.I.'s from Fort Lewis like it. Stay away from "The Brotherhood" and the "Eastside Club"; lumbertjacks and longshoremen. All of the taverns offer beer, wine, and pool. Jackieo's selections are poor in most cases. Unless you are a good pool player, find out how much you are playing for, it is usually two bits. Be aware of the old room on the pool table, most of them are hustlers.

Most of the "Cocktail Lounges" offer live music. Two of the best are at the "Jaccaranda," and "The Evergreen Inn," but the price of drinks are to high to warrant a trip to them.

DANCING

The only place to dance in the area if you are under 21 is at the "Country." Their band feels mostly poor, sometimes fair, and occasionally good. Any age can dance but you must be 21 to get out again and avoid paying twice. If you don't mind competing with "Trempen Boppers," "G.I.'s" and occasional Sheriff harassment, go.

St. Martin Pavilion and KGY sometimes book a halfway decent band. If one comes that you care about try it out.

Well, that's your guide. I will not make any apologies for it. I have partaken and participated in all that I wrote about. If further information is desired, see me.

Mancon Wallen has once again departed from his normal popular and classical guitarist in his latest effort entitled, Sharepickers, (Warner Bros., W6461). Sharepickers confirms this writer's suspicions, which began with William's previous album, Handmade, that the author of the Infamous "Classical Guitar" is gradually switching over to a mixture of bluegrass and popular guitar from the more poetic contemporary music evident in his flowering on the Smothers Brothers and his first four albums.

Another apparent deviation is that this album is more of William's concert style than any other albums outside of Handmade, in that good old material is performed by the back-up crew. Bill Cunningham performs some excellent renditions of some traditional fiddle tunes, and Rick Conia, both a guitarist and vocalist, adds a few interesting original folk-blues compositions. Unfortunately and noticeably missing from this album is pianist Ellen Zamorano from New York City, who in the past has complemented the group superbly with a kind of Ellen Johnsish style. Williams himself adds only a few new cuts to the album, typified by "Here I Am Again," which has the definite folkLY bluegrass influence in the lyrics and melody most distinctly brought out by Cynthis symbiotic good twanging on the dobro. All in all, it's another good album; but for this writer, not enough actual William material.

I THINK I WENT OUT THE THIRD FLOOR WINDOW!" BY MAXVNY WAYNE WRIGHT

There was two of them, one in the room with me. One way to the cabin the keepers the other occupied within five the room near. Their and down the hill to the hill and to the hill. It went, went and went and went. I was lit, not mortally, just physically, in the cabin my that I lift my heart, not last. I was lucky to get up, I then I went out of the window, I was billion to get up all. It was a third floor window!" (Yes again). Off the team for good.
