

Humanities

At Evergreen study in the Humanities stresses:

Literature, history, philosophy, anthropology, psychology and religion

Connections among language, thought, value, behavior and society

Attempts to imagine and make new relationships and societies

Evergreen's interdisciplinary programs combine ordinarily separate subjects under a cohesive theme or topic. Each program is taught by a team of faculty, has a full schedule of seminars, lectures, labs and workshops, and may have options for additional courses in related subjects. You usually take only one program at a time and each program spans one, two or three quarters, so you have an excellent opportunity to probe what you are learning and to undertake long-term projects.

The recommended sequence of study in Humanities is as follows:

First Year

Any Core Program. These programs provide educational background so important to beginning students.

Second and Third Year

Choose among the following programs:

"Roots and Visions: Humanistic Explorations in the Culture, Social-Psychology and Political Economy of Reason"

"An Anthropology of Human Communities"

"At the Edge of History: The Roots of Society"

"Literature, Values and Social Change: Europe and the United States in the Nineteenth Century"

"Mass Media, Popular Culture and Folklore"

"Student Originated Studies (in Humanities)"

"Meaning, Learning and Power: Constructing an Education"

"Northwest Life"

"The Victorian Connection"

"Interpreting Modern Poetry"

"Revising the Tradition"

"American Studies IV: 1960-1990"

"Narrative Poems of the Golden Age"

"The Human Condition: Reading and Writing the Book of Nature"

"Hometowns"

"Writers' Workshop"

Fourth Year

Senior project, internship, individual contract or other programs of interest.

Internships

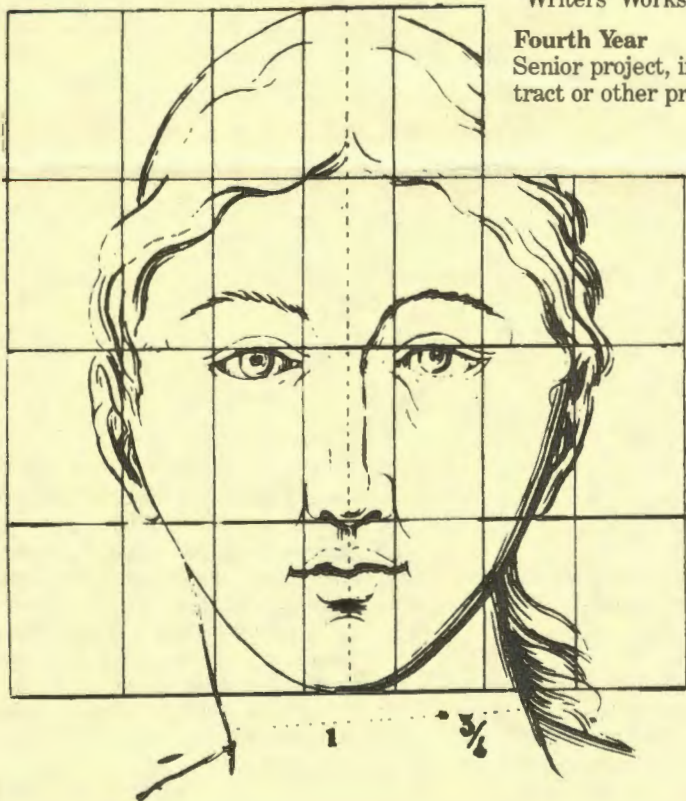

Internships are used by many students so they can apply what they have learned in such settings as a museum, a newspaper office, an historical society or the state legislature. For example, Evergreen graduates have made important contributions to preserving the local history of the state of Washington through their research. They have served as research analysts, and in a variety of capacities for public and private agencies. Evergreen graduates have won considerable recognition for their work in internships and individual projects. Our Cooperative Education Office guides you in finding appropriate placement through its many listings in the Pacific Northwest and from places as distant as the U.S. Congress in Washington, D.C.

Advising Services

Our Advising Services enable you to make intelligent decisions about your education at each step of the way, rather than follow standardized requirements. In other words, you are able to work with a faculty or staff advisor in designing a coherent path through our Core, intermediate and advanced offerings. In this way you can combine programs, projects and internships as you work toward your degree. If you have chosen a field of study, if you are undecided, or if you change your mind later, our advisors can assist you in making appropriate plans.

The Learning Environment

Evergreen challenges you to think independently and creatively. You will find that your teachers encourage you to develop your potential and your interests as a student by working productively with others rather than competing with them. Evergreen faculty provide written evaluations rather than grades to reflect your achievements.
