

Group A

First, review your key article (5.1), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #1 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.1 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group A

First, review your key article (5.1), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #1 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.1 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group A

First, review your key article (5.1), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #1 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.1 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group A

First, review your key article (5.1), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #1 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.1 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.1) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.1) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.1) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.1) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

Group B

First, review your key article (5.2), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #2 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.2 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group B

First, review your key article (5.2), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #2 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.2 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group B

First, review your key article (5.2), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #2 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.2 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group B

First, review your key article (5.2), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #2 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.2 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.2) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.2) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.2) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.2) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

Group C

First, review your key article (5.2), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #3 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.2 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group C

First, review your key article (5.2), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #3 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.2 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group C

First, review your key article (5.2), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #3 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.2 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group C

First, review your key article (5.2), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #3 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.2 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.2) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.2) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.2) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.2) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

Group D

First, review your key article (5.4), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #4 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.4 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group D

First, review your key article (5.4), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #4 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.4 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group D

First, review your key article (5.4), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #4 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.4 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group D

First, review your key article (5.4), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #4 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.4 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.4) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.4) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.4) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.4) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

Group E

First, review your key article (5.3), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #5 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.3 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group E

First, review your key article (5.3), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #5 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.3 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group E

First, review your key article (5.3), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #5 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.3 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group E

First, review your key article (5.3), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #5 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.3 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.3) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.3) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.3) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.3) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

Group F

First, review your key article (5.5), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #6 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.5 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group F

First, review your key article (5.5), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #6 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.5 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group F

First, review your key article (5.5), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #6 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.5 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

Group F

First, review your key article (5.5), then briefly summarize and discuss it.

Before you start choose a timekeeper and someone to take notes. You will have about 40 minutes to work on the following questions together:

1. Question #6 on page 51 RWM.
2. Question #8 on page 51 RWM. But also add the following questions. "Are bigger businesses or smaller businesses the only options? And if not what might other options be?"
3. Feminist Economics:
Rarely do these articles mention gender specifically, but if we read between the lines we might say that they are all about the political economy of gender (as well as the pe of race). In article 5.5 discuss and list all the ways in which gender may be a factor and in which ways sexist oppression is evident. If on some things you are not sure, what more information would you need?

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.5) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.5) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.5) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.

4. Applied Economics:

A. How might you use the info and ideas in your article (5.5) to better understand the local economies (Evergreen, Olympia, South Sound, Western Wa).

B. What kind of organizing would be assisted by the info and ideas in your article? How might this influence your collective strategy and tactics? (Strategy is a long term plan of action designed to achieve a particular goal, as differentiated from tactics or immediate actions with resources at hand. A tactic is a method employed to help achieve a very specific goal that may be part of a longer term strategy.)

In the last five minutes of your time choose two of the four questions you want to report on and also choose a spokesperson for each question's report. You will have a total of three minutes to report on both questions.