

Errata in : Barbara Duden, Disembodying Women.

p. 9t Compostela

p. 21t/m ... Catholics recognize that: "right from ...

p. 22t ... current papal teaching bolsters its theological authority with a ...

p. 26m-31t María Sánchez [several times]

p. 28m Jíbaro

p. 54t/m But it is not in the distinct matter of deciding ...

p. 57b ... speaks of the Latin term, fetus, in his book ...

p. 59t In Roman law the human unborn was regarded ...

p. 59b ... Gregory IX (1227-41). The circumstances ...

p. 59b ... the nature of the matter questioned. Gregory ...

p. 69t ... discernible in the arrangement of his figures,"

p. 86t ... nourish and clean and soothe.5

At the height of the twelfth-century belief that the world is held in God's hand - another expression for the analogy of being - Hildegard of Bingen adds her voice.
[eliminate: And she continues:]

And behold by means ...
... have fallen on it.6

In another place she writes:

As I said, what is this ...

p. 90m Judith Van Herik

p. 93m ... to this particular moment ...

p. 97b He wants to provide the city authorities with ...

p. 113, #4. Paczensky (three times)

p. 115, #8. Origins ... p. 701

p. 120 #2 (chap. 14). Judith Van Herik [twice]

(copied out by Hoinacki, Philadelphia, Dec 17, 2003)